The free lance writer may be doomed to disappointment. To prove this I will tell a story, and have the records to show, verifying its truth. One day about sixteen years ago I mailed two fables to Lippincott's magazine. One was accepted at a good price, the other rejected—not only by Lippincott's, but by dozens of other magazines since, and still will be its first appearance in print if the Times doesn't turn it down.

Which was accepted? Any person giving the right answer will receive the Kasso one year free. The one guessing wrong should subscribe but will not be obliged to do so. The query will be answered in our August number. This fable appears below. Which is the worse of the two?

Many In Peril As Part Of Woolworth Store Building Falls

Many lives were imperiled this morning at 11:50 when a section of the large property on Chillicothe street, owned by Woolworth's 5 and 10 cent store, fell.

The wall, weakened by the fact that it was not properly braced, fell, and a large section of the building came crashing down. The fall was so sudden that many of the people in the store were unable to get out in time. The building was a three-story structure, and the fall was from the top of the building.

Five men, Ernest and Clyde Nelson, William Kingston, Frank Atkins and James Pitts were working in the cellar when the wall buckled and then came down with a tremendous crash. The men were caught in the debris and were unable to get out in time. The building was a three-story structure, and the fall was from the top of the building.

When the wall started to fall John Kingston, manager of the store, was in his office located directly against the wall. He did not have time to get out in time. The building was a three-story structure, and the fall was from the top of the building.

Not more than five minutes before the wall fell in it told Mr. Boyer that the store was in danger. He did not have time to get out in time. The building was a three-story structure, and the fall was from the top of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Onkes, of Harrisonville, Mo., were at the store at the time of the fall. They were in the store at the time of the fall. The building was a three-story structure, and the fall was from the top of the building.

"We had a most fortunate escape as usually four or five girls are at work directly against the wall which fell," Mr. Underwood says. "One stock is insured but whether against this kind of an accident I am unable to state at this time."

Mr. Underwood said that he was unable to estimate the loss. The whole section of the north wall tumbled down and brought with it much of the stock in the 5 and 10 cent store. The wall fell with sufficient force to twist the floor in the store into three or four parts.

The building will have to be repaired and the wall reinforced before work on Mr. Boyer's new building can be resumed. The excavating work for the foundation of the new building is being done by Contractors Arthur Simpson and Morris Brown.

The Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 24.—Bullish sentiment was apparent at the outset of today's stock market operations, speculative favorites making material additions to recent gains. Strongly characterized was again the sensational feature, adding some ten points to yesterday's 20 point advance in the first half hour. Stocks, however, and food values were 1 to 4 points higher, and old and shippings made moderate progress. Bulls were relatively backward and Lullaland Tobacco forfeited part of yesterday's substantial rise.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The violent fluctuations of Strongly, which reached from 104 to 91 and rallied to 95, exerted little adverse influence in the other quarters of the list where gains were steadily extended on very large dealings. U. S. Steel assumed a commanding position, gaining 2 points, and its price advanced 2 1/2 to 4 and 1/2 points and 1/2 to 1 1/2. Less activity was shown by equipment, auto from 100 to 105 and 1/2 to 1 1/2. Less activity was shown by equipment, auto from 100 to 105 and 1/2 to 1 1/2.

Suit Over Property
An action for specific performance for failure to convey real estate was instituted in common pleas court today by Carrie E. Brewer against P. Kinney Hall and Elsie Hall.

The plaintiff, through Attorney B. F. Kibbe, claims she entered into an agreement with the defendants through their authorized agent, W. W. Banger, on June 10 last, for the property known as the Hall property, and located at 405 and 410 Court street. The plaintiff now complains that the defendants refuse to carry out their part of the contract and convey the property, although she made tender of the balance of the purchase price, she says.

The plaintiff further claims that the reasonable value of the real estate over and above the purchase price over and above to pay, is $10,000, for which she asks judgment in the event the court should find that the relief prayed for cannot be granted.

Adkins, Long Hill farmer, whom she married Oct. 23, 1915.

THE TURKISH PROBLEM

Strait international territory, to give the west coast of Asia Minor to Greece, the south shore to Italy, to build an independent Armenia, to demolish and lacking the capacity to become feasible. This is obviously to be nothing for the Turk is bound to push outward again in all directions, to seek the coast, pushing the Greek into the sea, overrunning Armenia, invading Italy in one more expensive and dangerous colonial war. This is exactly what is happening now, so far as the Greek is concerned. We touch in this instance upon one of the main problems before the League of Nations, namely the question of enforcing its decisions. It has no army, it can, doubtless borrow British and American troops for police work on the coast but Anatolia like Mexico is not a peaceful country. If Turkey were a civilized country like France or Italy, using the sea for its interchange with the world and seeking such interchange, then there would be a method of bringing her to reason.

Claims Dandruff Will Cause Baldness

If you have dandruff you must get rid of it quick—it's positively dangerous and will surely ruin your hair if you don't. Dandruff made means faded, brittle, gray, scraggly hair that finally dies and falls out—new hair will not grow—because you are bald and cannot help you.

The only sure way to abolish dandruff for good is to destroy the germ that causes it. To do this quickly, surely and safely, and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisan Sage, which you can get from Warrace Bros., good druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair, and promote a new growth of the most beautiful and abundant hair for years to come.—Adv.

But she is not. Moreover, and the point is capital, Turkey remains, as she has always been, the centre of rivalries between great powers. If French and British interests have been accommodated in the Aegean port, France and Britain remain rivals at Constantinople and both are agreed that neither shall have that city, while both are equally agreed in opposing Italian aspirations. Behind all lies the shadow of Russia, promised Constantinople by both Britain and France four brief years ago. If she ever becomes strong again, Russia is certain to seek to follow the old pathway to open water.

There is, then, something more than local significance in the latest Greek-Turkish affair, which is so strongly reminiscent of the history familiar to school boys students of Greek. This the oldest of all international questions is among the first to demand adjustment by the newest of all international systems.

Hamilton Man Gives Nerv-Worth Credit For That and Other Blessings

In connection with the Howe Drug Co.'s heavy sales of Nerv-Worth at Hamilton, there are the usual number of enthusiastic reports from benefited users. Here is one given a few days ago:

Howe Drug Co.—I have been troubled for a long time with a bad stomach. I could not eat anything with any satisfaction and could not sleep. I had been doctoring with our physician, but he did not seem to relieve me. I used many other medicines, but with the first bottle of your Nerv-Worth, I received much relief and after I had taken two bottles I could eat anything. In fact, am eating too much, but it does not hurt me at all and I can sleep now all night. I cannot say too much for Nerv-Worth, and will gladly recommend it to any one.

Senator Lodge offered the measure after a sharp debate, during which Republican spokesmen declared that the terms of the treaty required that it be submitted to the senate for ratification at the same time as the treaty with Germany.

Sheds Light On Shantung Provision

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24.—

Declaring that the treaty provision giving Japan control in Shantung had been "repeatedly misinterpreted and generally misunderstood," Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, told the senate today it was unjust to suspect Japan's motives or to question the declaration of her statement that the territory eventually would be restored to China.

"It has been stated by one senator," said Mr. Robinson, "that by the treaty Shantung with its 40,000,000 inhabitants is wrested from China and presented to Japan. The territory involved in this controversy is limited to a small land area of approximately 200 square miles and an equal water area. The total population of the leased area is approximately 105,000.

"That Germany regarded her rights in Shantung as subject to seizure by the allied nations at war with her is disclosed by her efforts to anticipate their occupation of the leased territory. Japan obtained possession by act of war and while in possession secured the agreement of China to recognize any settlement that she might make with Germany upon the restoration of peace.

"Japanese statesmen have repeatedly reaffirmed the purpose to return the leased territory to China as soon as it can be accomplished in accordance with the agreement between China and Japan. No beneficial effect can result if we assume that Japan is acting in bad faith."

CONSIDER THIS WOMAN'S CASE Mrs. A. L. DeVine of Los Angeles, Cal., says: "After I had suffered from a female trouble for years, not being able to do my housework, or get any relief from doctors, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I want to tell the world the good this medicine does."

This woman is perfectly justified, and should be commended for telling others how she regained her health.

You Do Not Operate This Player-Piano YOU PLAY IT

This player-piano gives you—not the temporary novelty of operating a mechanical instrument—but the soul-satisfaction of personally playing a piano. The is controlled from the pedals, the point where you instinctively try to put your natural musical feeling into the playing of the instrument. Each pedal stroke does not merely make certain notes strike, but it makes them sound with the exact volume and accent which your musical feeling desires. The force and style of the stroke are transmitted from the pedal to the piano strings as the striking of the artist's fingers is transmitted from the keys to the strings. It is as if you were in Direct Contact with the piano action, so sensitive is the Manualo mechanism in your every wish.

The Manualo is built into four standard instruments of the House of Baldwin. The price varies with the price of the piano. The immense production of the House of Baldwin factories at Cincinnati and Chicago insures your getting the highest value player-piano at whatever price you pay.

Before you buy a player-piano, ask for "The A B C of the Manualo", giving complete information on the development of the player-piano and explaining in detail why the Manualo will give you continuous satisfaction.

State Examiners' Report Still Concerns City Auditor's Office

BUILDING PERMITS
Mar. 1-Dec. 31, 1917	Jan. 1-Sept. 30, 1918
House Permit Fees	$29,340
SUMMARY
Collections on hand Feb. 28, 1917	$
Collections Mar. 1, 1917 to Sept. 30, 1918	$15,000
Deposits Mar. 1, 1917 to Sept. 30, 1918	$15,000

The building permit fees as collected by the city auditor, are deposited to the credit of the public service fund.

The building permit fees were checked from the record of such permits No. 200 to No. 1041, inclusive. The collections for the period audited, as indicated by said record, were all accounted for.

In accordance with Section 314 of the Codified Ordinances of 1917, all persons desiring to erect, construct, enlarge, alter, repair or remove any building or structure within the corporate limits, are required, before commencing or proceeding with said work, to procure a permit from the city auditor. The permit to cover a period of one year. Under Section 316 of the said Codified Ordinances the party desiring a building permit is required to file with the service department an application setting forth the character and extent of the improvement, the estimated cost, the exact location and such other information as the director may require. In accordance with Section 317 of the said Codified Ordinances the auditor is required to collect a fee for each permit. The amount of same being based upon the estimated cost, as follows:

$500.00 and less, a fee of	$1.00
$500.00 to $5,000.00 a fee of	2.00
In excess of $5,000.00 a fee of	3.00

It would appear that no written applications are filed with the service department, the permit, which is filled out by the service department instead of the auditor, being prepared from verbal statements of the applicants. The permits are signed by the auditor and the fees collected by him.

HOUSE MOVING PERMITS
Mar. 1-Dec. 31, 1917	Jan. 1-Sept. 30, 1918
House Moving Permit Fees	$100.00
SUMMARY
Collections on hand Feb. 28, 1917	$
Collections Mar. 1, 1917 to Sept. 30, 1918	$100.00
Deposits Mar. 1, 1917 to Sept. 30, 1918	$100.00

The fees collected for house moving permits were deposited in the treasury to the credit of the public service fund. In harmony with Section 417 of the Codified Ordinances, it is unlawful to remove any house, shop or other building through the streets of the city without having first procured from the council a permit to do so. Before the permit is granted and issued the applicant is required to pay to the auditor a fee of $50.00. Under Section 418 of said ordinances the applicant is required to deposit with the auditor, in addition to the permit fee, for the purpose of protecting the city against loss in the way of damage to streets and public places over which the buildings may be removed, the amount so deposited to be returned to applicant if no damages accrue. It would appear that the parties to whom house moving permits were issued during the period audited were required to make the deposit as set forth in Section 418, but there being no loss in the way of damage to the streets the deposits were returned.

License Col. Deposited Mar. 1, 1917 to Sept. 30, 1918 $221,500
Discrepancy September 30, 1918 $11.00

The discrepancy as above set forth is due to the failure to enter in the cash book and deposit a license fee of $11.00 received from Albert Blandford June 25, 1917, for an annual license from June 10, 1917, for operating three pool tables at No. 703 Chillicothe street.

In accordance with the above statement a finding for recovery is here with returned against Louis A. Zucker, in favor of the city of Portsmouth to the amount of $11.00. The amount of the above finding was deposited in the treasury December 31, 1918, through payment order No. 132.

The license fees as above stated are collected by the city auditor and the fees collected by said official. The license fees as fixed by ordinance of the council appear to have been charged and collected except in the following instances:

August 23, 1917, there was collected from Sells-Tony Shows $15.00 and September 3, 1917, from John H. Sparks Shows $12.50, the same being for license fees for circus and museum exhibitions. It would appear that the charges were made under the codified ordinances of 1917, which provided a fee of $10.00 for circus and museum and $25.00 for exhibitions under separate tents. The section of the codified ordinances of 1907 applying to said license fees was repealed September 20, 1918, and the fee for exhibitions under separate tents was fixed at $50.00. Accordingly the license fees collected from said shows should have been $15.00 each instead of $12.50.

May 3, 1918, there was collected from the Portsmouth Ferry Company, a license fee for operating the ferry at the foot of Union street from February 19, 1917, to February 19, 1918. We are unable to find from the records any authority for the charging of an annual fee of $25.00 for the operation of said ferry. Under the provisions of Section 257 of the codified ordinances of 1917, it is provided that a fee of $1.00 shall be charged for license for the operation of said ferry and that all rules and regulations adopted as to the government of ferries, except as to license, apply to the ferry at the foot of Union street. It would appear from the available records that the charge of $25.00 was erroneous.

Section 311 of the codified ordinances of 1917 provides: "There shall be no refund allowed on any license issued in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, nor shall any license be issued for the fractional part of a year except as herein specially provided."

The officials who issue the licenses and collect the fees must be governed in the charges by the provisions of the license ordinances and a failure to collect the fees stipulated therein will render such officers liable for the amounts involved.

The license fees were checked from No. 1211 to No. 1343, inclusive, and the collections, with the exception above noted, were monthly deposited to the credit of the public safety fund.

GROUND RENTAL
As per the records of the city auditor the following amounts were collected by the auditor for ground rental of property owned by the city:
December 6, 1917, Thyrza Spay, Lots 21-22 Market street	$9.00
December 20, 1917, Sarah Ray, Lots 1-2, Market street	144.00
December 21, 1917, H. Rottinghouse, Lots 12, 16, 17, 18, 19, Market street	119.00
December 22, 1917, E. J. Kendrick, Lot 3, Market street	57.00
December 26, 1917, V. W. Thompson, Lot 15, Market street	59.57
December 31, 1917, A. Hirth, Lot 13 Market street	59.52
December 31, 1917, H. M. Glockner, Lot 11 Market street	21.00
December 31, 1917, A. Brunner & Son, Lot 9, Market St.	72.00
December 31, 1917, F. C. Dehler, Lots 19-20, Market St.	72.00
December 31, 1917, Mike Grisel, Lot 14, Market St.	55.00
Total Ground Rental Collections	$634.01

On December 31, 1917, the above collections were deposited in the city treasury to the credit of the sinking fund.

"The ground rentals on lots 21-22 Market street, is paid bi-monthly. It would appear from the records on file with the auditor that the land and property in question was originally leased by the city during the 'forties' for a period of ninety-nine years; the rental, as indicated by said original leases, to be paid semi-annually.

So far as ascertainable the leases to whom the original grants were made have either transferred their rights or else through death bequeathed them to others.

In certain of said leases the annual rental was to be based on the actual appraisal of the property. The leases in question should be carefully examined and the exact rental thereunder determined.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT COLLECTIONS

During the period audited special assessments were collected by the auditor as follows:

	Mar. 1-Dec. 31, 1917	Jan. 1-Sept. 30, 1918
Improvement	$117.17	$
Walnut Street		22.01
Court Street		70.72
Third Street		41.23
Tenth Street		18.01
Gay Street		14.05
Robinson Avenue
Totals	$117.17	$176.25

The above assessments were collected direct by the city auditor and by said official deposited in the treasury. The assessments thus collected represent remaining installments which had previously been certified to the county auditor for collection. In paying the installments the interest on same was included. In this connection it might be well to state that the Attorney General has held in an opinion under date of December 4, 1918, that when assessments are certified to the county auditor, the collection of such assessments must be made by the county treasurer and that the city treasurer has no authority to receive the same.

Discrepancy September 30, 1918 $11.00

The discrepancy as above set forth is explained under the heading of "License Collections" on a preceding page of this report.

It will be noted by the above statement that during a period of thirteen months the city auditor collected in public money of the city $2,645.75.

In relation to the audit of the auditor the following statement of the public revenue of the city The Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices states under date of October 25, 1918, as follows:

"According to a decision of the circuit court, State ex rel. vs. Gobert, 12 U. S. 274, as follows:

"Officers are considered incompatible when one is subordinate to, or in any way, a clerk upon the other; or when it is physically impossible for one to discharge the duties of both."

If the officers are incompatible the duties are incompatible. Under Section 251 of the Code, it is the duty of the auditor to examine and audit the accounts of all officers and departments, therefore, the auditor, who is the accounting officer, should not collect public moneys. It is all right for him to make pay-in orders for receipts but he should not receive moneys. In this regard we are again calling attention to the opinion of Attorney General, under date of September 9, 1912, page 351 of the Annual Reports for 1912, as follows:

By Sections 4281 and 4284, General Code, the office of city auditor is made a check upon those officers of a city who in any way handle funds of the city, or who are required to keep accounts of the same, or who are required to verify claims for payment to the city auditor, in order that he may draw vouchers for same. His office is therefore incompatible with any such offices."

In accordance with the opinion of the Attorney General and the decision of the court the city auditor cannot legally collect any of the public revenue of the city, and this is true whether he be so authorized by ordinance of council or not.

Any ordinance of council to be valid must be in conformity to statutory provision. If an ordinance provides for an act that is contrary to law, to that extent the ordinance is invalid and hence non-enforceable. The fact that the ordinance of council directed the auditor to collect certain license and permit fees did not, in view of the statutes, obligate the auditor to comply therewith.

It has been held frequently by the courts that before responsibility attaches to a public collecting agency there must be the proper legal authority; in other words, a public official must be authorized either through the provisions of the statutes or official record, to collect public revenue and without such authority there is lack of ample protection in case of defalcation upon the part of the party collecting such revenue.

The law reserves upon council the authority to require each official or employee, before entering upon the performance of his official duties, to give a bond in such an amount as council may determine, for the faithful performance of the requirements of his office together with a true accounting for all public revenues that may legally come into his possession. If an official or employee is not properly authorized to collect and receive public revenue, such revenue does not legally come into his hands and therefore his bond is not held for the amount he may so collect.

As has been indicated, the auditor under the law is not authorized to collect public revenue, and it is not one of the duties of his office. This being true there is no liability attaching to the bond of the auditor hence no protection is afforded the city, under the bond, for the amount of the public revenue he may collect.

It is not a question of the honesty of the auditor, it is merely a matter of compliance with the law and the proper safeguarding of the public funds. It might be well to state in this connection that the present city auditor was following the footsteps of his predecessors, as the kind of revenue above set forth was collected by them in like manner.

The auditor was informed of the irregularity of his procedure in the collection of the city's revenue, and he assured us that from and after January 1, 1919, no more public funds would be received in his office.

SOLDIERS' RELIEF

Monthly there is transmitted to the city treasurer from the county treasury a sum sufficient to pay relief allowed claimants of the city of Portsmouth under the provision of Section 2237, General Code. When the money is received by the city treasurer the auditor draws orders in favor of the claimants, the treasurer paying said orders from the funds transmitted to him. The money thus received by the treasurer is held separate and apart from the funds of the city and the auditor keeps no financial record of the funds so disbursed.

In this connection we desire to call attention to the last sentence of Section 2238, General Code, which provides: "But in townships embracing a county seat in which the office of county treasurer is kept, the county treasurer shall disburse such fund to the persons named in the list to be furnished him by the township or city clerk, and take proper receipts therefor."

Inasmuch as the city of Portsmouth is a county seat it is the duty of the county treasurer to disburse the soldiers' relief fund awarded the claimants of said city. The auditor should discontinue the practice of issuing orders on said fund and the city treasurer should refuse to receive the fund.

FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND

It is the practice of council to semi-annually appropriate within the public safety fund a stipulated amount as a firemen's pension fund, the same to be disbursed to claimants which have been previously designated by the finance committee of council, none of said claimants being in the employ of the city at the time.

We transmitted one of the monthly pay-rolls to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices, with an explanation thereon, and under date of November 18, 1918, received the following response:

"The only legal method for the relief of firemen who are no longer able to remain in the service and families of firemen, is under the firemen's pension fund sections of law. The real work must be handled by the trustees of the firemen's pension fund."

"The trustees must request budget, which goes before council, but all discretion of payment of benefits rests with such trustees. Under Section 4382, General Code, a municipality may pass an ordinance granting payment of compensation or part thereof to firemen who are in the service and incapacitated."

"The voucher you sent us is not in reality a firemen's pension voucher."

The council should desist from naming claimants for firemen's pension and appropriating within the safety fund for the payment. If no levy has been made for firemen's pension fund then, under the provision of Section 4006, General Code, the council may transfer 10% firemen's pension fund a sum, that amount of the liquor tax.

The city auditor has no authority in the payment of beneficiaries of the firemen's pension fund, and inasmuch as the claimants have been illegally designated and the funds irregularly set apart, the auditor should refuse to further disburse payments against the firemen's pension fund appropriation.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Miss Wise—How many people in the United States die from tuberculosis every year?
H. W.

One hundred and fifty thousand persons in the United States die from tuberculosis each year.

Dear Miss Wise—I am in love with a gentleman two years my senior. He sent me flowers, books and candy, until lately, he seems to go out with some other girl, which makes me jealous. How can I regain his friendship? I miss him very much.
F. H.

Jealousy is a mean ailment, isn't it, F. H.? Almost as bad as a toothache in the way it disturbs your point of view on life. Which is reason enough for trying to get it out of your system with as little delay as possible. There is but one remedy in a situation like yours and that is to try to put the jealousy and the man out of your mind at one and the same time. It rarely happens where an old basis of friendship is attempted to be regained by the girl pursuing a man that the movement is a success, unless you can manage to inspire a little jealousy in his mind.

Dear Dolly Wise—Can I secure a loan on my war risk insurance?
Q. C. C.

The policies provide for loans at any time after the first year equal to 24 per cent of the cash surrender value.

Dear Miss Wise—We are two girls of 16 who do not work, consequently have plenty of time to go out. There are two boys who persist in showering their attention upon us and get very jealous if we go out with any other boys. What should we do, as they are nice boys and we want to keep their friendship and still enjoy ourselves with others? We feel that we are too young to hold any particular friendship, as these boys seem to want us to do. Please advise us.

M.

Let them get over their jealousy, girls, as best they know how. Of course, you don't want to rebuff them. But of boy friends to two and two only.

Dear Dolly—What are the Seven Wonders of the World?
HISTORY STUDENT.

They are the Pyramids of Egypt, the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, the Colossus at Rhodes, the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the Statue of Zeus by Phidias at Olympia, the Pharos of Alexandria in Egypt.

Dear Dolly—A gentleman friend of mine left town about three weeks ago to be gone for four months. He asked me if I would write him. But I have not done so, as I expected to hear from him first. Do you think he expects me to write first?
DURIOUS.

Maybe he does, but under circumstances would write if I were in your place until you have proof in a letter from him that he is still anxious to hear from you.

Dear Miss Wise—My home is in the country, but I cannot call myself a country girl, for I was brought up in the city. Our family likes farming and we are happy to make our home where we can have our own capers, vegetables, fresh eggs, butter and milk. Loneliness is my problem. When I was going to high school I had plenty of friends and became engaged to a young man. We broke off though, probably it was for the best, because we were both so young. I still had friends and carried deeply for two or three of them, but we drifted apart. The average man does not appeal to me. Probably I am too old fashioned in my ideas. I like, clean-minded, natural men and women. Nowadays the way a man's heart seems to be through a painted face and low necked georgette waist. I would rather go unmarried all my life than to compromise myself in that cheap way. My girl friends say I am too reserved. I realize that I am shy, but I can't help it. When I finally become well acquainted I have no trouble keeping friends. They say that I am sympathetic and they can tell me anything, knowing it will never be repeated. If I could only correspond with some fine young man, I think he would learn to like me. But that is hopeless because I do not know any one out of town or in town who cares about writing to me. As I grow older I find it more and more difficult to be friendly to a man the first time I meet. The program of life seems to be a long ride to work in the morning, a busy day, a long ride home, and an evening reading and talking to my parents and a long night's rest.

I don't know just why I am writing, because there is really no way you can help me. Perhaps it is my desire to write and talk to someone that has made me say this to you. You will think from my letter that I am very old. I don't feel old when I am busy. I am usually six.

LONESOME.

Your letter is very interesting. There are many girls in the world who are lonely, girls who would make splendid wives and mothers, but because of shyness and circumstance they do not have the opportunity to become acquainted with men. I think a decided change would do you good. Go out of town for a vacation. If you have not money to travel for two or three weeks, go to a lovely resort near by. Take books along and sewing, if you care to. Even if you do not make a number of friends you will make a few if you do your part to be friendly. The change of air and scenery will be good for you. You must try to conquer your shyness. You can be pleasant and genial without being bold. Probably you do not take enough interest in out-of-door sports. Exercise produces health and vigor, and vigor helps to attract friends. Possibly during your vacation you will meet some one who would like to correspond. I can see how pleasant it would be for you if you had the opportunity to write and receive interesting letters.

Dear Dolly—When a girl goes to a restaurant or a hotel with a young man, should she sit at his left or his right?
DOLLY.

The young man should see that she sits where she gets the best view of the dining room. The question of right or left side should not be considered.

July 24—Solvay vs. Drew
July 25—Steel Plant vs. N. & W.
July 26—Excelsior vs. Solvay

Playing practically perfect ball he led the high class pitching of Manager Josephus Thimmes. Barber, those Excelsiors now on top by their lone score in first place, handed the N. & W. aggregation a clean shut out, last evening, on the Industrial League grounds, while they themselves whacked out six large and cracker runs off the hurling of Ed Wyckoff, who, while idly with considerable vigor, deserved a far better fate. The fielding of the Railroaders, who were laboring under the orders of a new manager Mr. Thimmes, fielded like a lot of old women handling hand grenades, spilling six large errors and presenting the Excelsiors with several of their runs.

The Excelsiors always held the upper hand. When they did become dangerous, Manager Barber tightened up like a vice and effectively blocked them when they were in a position to score. In fact while Joe has pitched some great baseball in the Industrial League, he never tossed more effectively than he did last evening and it is quite likely he could have kept on the way he was going indefinitely. He allowed but three hits, two of which came in the same inning, and the Railroaders got but two men on base in the opening.

Inning Mr. Goode, who is one of the best all around players, led off with a double to middle and was paddled to third on Thimmes' well placed sacrifice. But he did not get back, for Barber put a little more stuff on the pit and caused Keyser to roll to him and fanned Vanhookers, the clean-up individual in the B. R. line-up. That only went to prove the effectiveness of Mr. Barber's hurling, and he was warmly applauded when he came in for a short rest from his labors.

The third inning was almost a duplicate of the first, for Thimmes reached third on his double and an out and died right in his tracks. Outside of these two innings, the N. & W. boys had no more chance than so many birds in a cage and they succumbed without making much of a fuss.

The Railroaders presented a different line-up last evening, but the new faces did not seem to benefit the team in any appreciable way, although it must be admitted they looked the part. But no one can get by on his looks in this league—it takes ability, willingness and aggressiveness, coupled with the breaks. Possibly Manager Thimmes will whip a team into shape before the season ends. He believes he is on the right track and will probably shake up the players before they show their wares the next time.

The Excelsiors were out to win, last night. The boys believed they have an elegant chance to win the consolation and they are full of pep as a result of their victory. The only error that is attributed to them was turned in by Mr. Menzies, second sacker, and it might have been recorded as a hit without straddling a point. Menzies who by the way, is a real leader with the wife plunked out four safe blows in as many times at bat and a fellow who can hit like this well built youngster, is entitled to make a boot now and then. His hitting and Manager Barber's pitching were the features of the game, coupled with the star catches made by Debo in left for the Railroaders and the classy playing of Cornutte at short for the Showworkers. Cornutte jumped as high as the Woolworth building and pulled down a liner from the lat of Hale who said something that sounded like Hale but which had an altogether different meaning.

Ralph Mansfield, who played first base for the Excelsiors, deserves special mention. Ralph did just as well as first base as Bridgeport's Kinsman, and while he did not get any safe blows, he hit the ball, even if he did wave at the crowd in the fifth, he is always adding encouraging words and helps to keep the team on its toes and is a valuable man to have around.

The Excelsiors were held in check by Wyckoff until the third, when they chalked up four runs. It was not the fault of Silas Jim, for his backing checked in several places and gave the Showworkers all their runs. Persons filed to second, but the chunked ball line rolled out of the Third Ward this summer taking second. House singled to second and after blocking down the hit, Keyser duplicated Hale's throw, Rollins coming in. Bradford rolled out as far as third base, in the opening inning. Mr. Goode, who is one of the best all around players, led off with a double to middle and was paddled to third on Thimmes' well placed sacrifice. But he did not get back, for Barber put a little more stuff on the pit and caused Keyser to roll to him and fanned Vanhookers, the clean-up individual in the B. R. line-up. That only went to prove the effectiveness of Mr. Barber's hurling, and he was warmly applauded when he came in for a short rest from his labors.

CLERKS DON BASEBALL TOGS TODAY

This afternoon at 1:30 o'clock the second games in the Thursday Afternoon League will be staged on the Sixteenth street ball diamond.

The games today between last Thursday's winners, The Portsmouth Dry Goods Company's nine and Ardross, while the losers Harbors and the Criterion will be pitted against each other. The two losers will play the first game.

At a recent meeting of the League heads it was announced that the four teams represented in the League had donated $10 each to the treasury as a rest egg. It is hoped that the collection taken on the grounds on Thursday afternoons will pay the running expenses.

The second game will be a battle as both teams played good ball last Thursday and will battle to a victory, as the winner will top the league and have a nice margin on the other three teams.

Game Of July 3 Between Steel-Solvay Thrown Out

On July 3 a game between the Solvay team and Steel Plant also in the Industrial League ended with the score 5 to 4 in favor of Solvay. A play came up during the game on which the Steel Plant protested the game. The League officials did not decide on the protest, but put the question to the National Commission, August 1st, chairman.

The play was as follows: Mowery of the Steel Plant was on second, the ball was thrown to third to head him off at that sack, the throw was wild and struck the bleacher railing. Mowery made third and started home, but Evans, coach, grabbed him and held him to the coach. Umpire Venger called Mowery out on account of Evans interfering with base runner. The Steel Plant argued that the ball was not in play and that Mowery should not have been called out.

Herrmann in replying to the Commission's action on the question, says as follows in a letter to Secretary E. S. Gilliam:

"I assume that the ground rule in question restricts the base runner to the base to which he was going on an overthrow."

"I would hold that he could not be legally put out because of the action of the coach after he passed third base, for the reason that the ball was not in play until held by the pitcher while in his position. Hence, Section 11, Rule 65, was not effective and the runner was not legally out."

Since the reply was received the League officials got together and by a vote of 4 to 1 decided to throw the game out and to play it over. Such action, of course, does not meet with the approval of the Solvay management, and Solvay says they will protest the finding of the National Commission.

GOOD COMES OF EVIL

WAR is horrible. Its evil, however, is not altogether uncompensated in the good that comes of it. Its slaughters and its desolation are qualified by arousing of man's noblest passion and the quickening of his soul now and then.

In a town, that holds many dear associations to us, but from which circumstances have taken us afar and for many years, we left behind a toddling child of rather remote kinship. He was a general favorite because he was bright and sweet and withal a merry lad. As he advanced towards manhood he grew in favor because of the apparent uprightness of his character and the undoubted correctness of his deportment, coupled with an air that people said was so like his father passed on, a noble and generous gentleman. For a time after he had reached manhood's estate he justified the faith and the pride the community had in him. He was industrious and capable and a useful, successful and even brilliant career seemed set open before him. Then something happened, or rather began to happen, no one ever knew what, or just exactly why, but he began to drift backwards. He did not take to drink, he fell into no evil habits that were observable and if he had serious vices they were never so much as hinted at—he just drifted backwards, ever backwards and downwards. His near relatives all died and his friends fell away from him, while he continued to drift backwards until he, the pride and promise of the community, became the outcast, a worthless, trifling vagabond.

Then came the war. He heard a call and something within him stirred. Past the draft age, true, but he could enlist. So between two days he took the railroad track that wound its sinuous and rough way to the big city almost a hundred and fifty miles distant. Weary, hungry and ragged he several days afterwards appeared at a recruiting station, but big, blazing posters said the country wanted men, not human derelicts and quite so the officers acted. The call, however, was not to be denied and after many rebuffs, he who can say with how much pride and hope, wrote his name down for service. Never a line he wrote his remote kin, or his old friends, of what he had done, but somehow the news got out, whereupon a most wonderful thing was shown. Those related to him by blood were not ashamed of him, why they were proud of him. Men came to shake his hand and tell him they hoped he would make such a soldier as the son of his father should; women came with gifts, mostly made with their own hands, and they kissed him and told him they would pray God to keep him safe.

So one day the whole city turned out to see "our boys" as they marched to the big depot on their way across, and none held his head more erect or looked straighter ahead than this trifter and hopeless one of a few months ago, for weren't his people proud of him and mustn't he make good and justify their love and their faith, besides doing a man's part in fighting for his country.

In France he did make good. So good, that although his regiment, which from start to finish ranked with the first and the few as the best fighters, was returned months ago, he of all that gallant division, is quite alone in France, because his superior officers say he is so good a man they can't spare him.

WHAT THE WAVES ARE SAYING

OUR old friend John "Burley" Jones, who is disporting with the dolphins along the waters of the New Jersey coast, jubilantly sends us an article from the New York Globe, in which the prediction is made that prices are coming down and the high cost of living will fade as the memory of a troubled dream.

The basis of the prediction is that the government has in storage 85,971,000 pounds of beef, 70,157,000 pounds of pork, 7,893,000 pounds of butter and 360,000,000 dozens of eggs, which will soon be thrown on the open market and then things will come a tumbling.

Nonsense! It is easy to accept these bright promises when one is sojourning with his folks and they pay the bill, but we who have to feed ourselves directly from the exorbitant stores of the truckman view them doubtfully, with a cold suspicious and frigid figuring. Eighty-five million pounds of beef sounds loud, so does seventy million pounds of pork and likewise three hundred and sixty million dozen eggs, but there are 100,000,000 lean and hungry stomachs in these United States and what would all that amount to in filling them, to say nothing of keeping them filled at a reasonable charge? Less than a pound around and just about three dozen eggs. It wouldn't give us three square meals a day and if we ate with that "coming appetite," that Burley parades as a Mascoie banquet, or an Elk buffet luncheon, all but crumbs and shells would disappear over night.

Nothing in F. Burley, nothing in it, we say, and as you will find when you return with the cooling breezes of September and go out to fill your own larder.

THE WISHING PLANE

The children and Captain Brave of just waiting and wondering when and Ladybird listened intently while Jeanne's father told what had happened to him during the war. When he received word late one afternoon while he was home with Jeanne and her mother that Germany was marching to France, he could hardly believe it. He really didn't think that such a serious thing as a world war was going to happen when he kissed them good-bye and hurried to join the ranks of the first brave army which presented the German from reaching Paris in the early weeks of the war.

But he soon saw that he was going to last many months. The number of soldiers grew rapidly. German sent larger forces and France had to have more men to send against the enemy.

Her father's story of the battles in which he fought and the brave deeds of the men around him just like the others the children had heard on their travels. Then finally he had been captured. He was taken to a German prison camp. There followed weeks of just waiting and wondering when he could get a chance to escape.

Finally his chance came, and in company with other French soldiers who had been taken with him, he made his way out of the camp during a violent storm one night. For days they were forced to hide. During the day they had vegetables taken from the fields. Twice they were almost captured by German bands on looking for escaped prisoners. On one occasion they had to swim a river and slip past a line of German sentries to escape capture.

At last they reached the French lines, found out where their regiments were fighting and joined them. More days of fighting followed—until he was wounded near Rheims and taken to the hospital there. You remember the doctor there told him the hospital became crowded and as soon as Jeanne's father could be moved he was taken to the hospital at Paris. His left arm had been shattered by bullets and had been cut off. Otherwise he was healthy and felt sure that when they returned home he could provide for Jeanne and her mother.

Jeanne's mother told him she had searched for weeks for Jeanne after becoming separated in the flight from their home, and had finally given up hope of seeing her daughter again.

Then she told her search for Jeanne's father and how she had found him in the hospital. Ladybird recalled the resemblance of Jeanne had noticed when she had stopped at her home, and when Ladybird asked Jeanne's mother if she had visited Rheims she said yes.

"At that time I had decided that Jeanne was dead. That is why the woman at Rheims probably thought I could not be Jeanne's mother," she said. "How we ever found each other again is one of the wonderful stories of the war."

New - York - Day - By - Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 24.—Hunting lodgings among the boarding houses of New York is one of the most interesting pursuits in the world. It opens the heart to a queer new world where the speech and customs are very different.

Irvin Cobb once said that everybody has some time or other lived on West Fifty-fifth street. From Fifth Avenue to the Hudson there are boarding houses galore—palatial affairs with rich furnishings and the kind that always has a care worn slaver who does everything.

Picking up a morning newspaper one may read about as follows: "For rent: Elegant front room with bath on West Fifty-fifth street. Ring Fitzgibbon's bell." The elegance consists of a landscape map on a wall, a coat rack and a chair. The bath room is down the hall—down three flights.

One finds all sorts of people in boarding houses—the obscure the great. I lived for a week in one where the clientele consisted of round-eyed continentalists. I thought nothing of seeing them walking up stairs on their hands or turning a flip off the front stoop.

There are all sorts of landladies too on West Fifty-fifth street. I remember of seeing one who wore a silk robe, a diamond stonacher and pearl earrings. And there was another a little further east who had a patch over her eye and drank. Landlady run over here and drink. Landlady run over here and drink. Landlady run over here and drink.

In some of the better class boarding houses now a single room with meals ranges from $50 to $75 a week. It is impossible to get anything cheaper than that. There is one woman who runs a chain of boarding houses. They are scattered over the town. She lives in London. Has a fine place in Kensington and all that.

Speaking of the police, a raid was made on one of the ten-cent-a-dance dancing Academies the other evening. Twenty young men were arrested. Twelve were hit over the heads with clubs and brought to the station house bleeding. Most of them were young fellows who went to the place because it was cheap. Not one resisted arrest, it is said. But the proprietor had been dishing out some cheap law and so the patrons got the benefit of the police fury. There are some good policemen in New York—but they are as the Westerner said "rara avis in birds."

LOCAL NEWS

The controversy over the enforcement of the dog catching law took on a new angle Wednesday when the Humane Society through its agent Harry Ball advised the County Commissioners that their society will take care of all dogs impounded and not redeemed at the expiration of 4 days and see that they are put to death in a humane manner and also provide for the burial of such dogs in a manner permissible by law.

The Commissioners promptly accepted the proposal and adopted a resolution authorizing the sheriff to purchase and have delivered at the pound, at the expense of the county, such food as necessary to feed dogs impounded under the provisions of the Act.

Prosecutor Sheppard declared that under a ruling he received from the County Attorney General that the Commissioners have now done all required of them and that it is now square up to the sheriff to do his duty and enforce the law.

A number of Portsmouth's well known colored soldiers passed through the city on a troop train bound for Camp Sherman Tuesday. Corp. Joseph Johnson was one of the number. When the train stopped in the yards in East Portsmouth he called friends in the North End and when the train passed the N. and W. station and nearly street crossings many friends of the boys were on hand to greet them. They expect to be discharged from Camp Sherman in a few days. Among the number were Corporal Roy Kinney, colored orderly, Private Roy Kinney, Private Herman Johnson, Private Joe Johnson, Private George Washington, Private Leroy Payne, Private Roy Ferguson, all in the 33rd Central Postal Directory and Sergeant Walter Vincent who was in the 53rd machine gun company, 2nd army. The boys were among the first ones to leave Sherman for overseas.

Corporal Kinney and Private Kinney visited home folks Tuesday night.

At a well attended meeting of Portsmouth Lodge of B. P. O. Elks No. 174 Wednesday evening the following Members were initiated: J. C. Triggs, J. W. G. Hannan, Arthur Deary, Louis Dinkel, Walter Russell Haley, Howard W. Davis, D. O. Williams and W. L. Dickey.

The following candidates were elected to membership: Frank Bishop, H. B. Ruel, H. G. Ruel, W. H. Baxter, C. J. Cropper, Samuel J. Welles, Stephen Horchow and W. J. Hayes.

A buffet lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Wednesday evening serious wounds were inflicted on the body of Albert Hale, 13-year-old New Boston youth, who this was the second victim of the dog which a month ago bit Helen Esther Smalley, daughter of Charles Smalley, New Boston.

The dog which belonged to Frank Jensen, Hurlstoneville, was said to be vicious and was killed this morning by Health Officer C. O. Davis. Dr. W. G. Cheney was called to attend to the boy. Health Officer Davis said the dog showed no signs of being mad, and after it was killed the dog was buried, as it was not thought necessary to send the head to Columbia for inspection.

The little Smalley girl who was bit a month ago, still continues in good health. Albert Hale, who is the son of Nelson Hale, is being watched carefully for any developments which might result from the bite.

SIR RABINDRANATH TAGORE

Sir Rabindranath Tagore is reported to have resigned his title, explaining in a letter to the viceroy of India, that he could not in honor continue to hold title under the British government because of the " enormity of the measures taken in India. He obtained world fame when awarded the Nobel prize in 1913, for idealistic literature. In the same year he visited the United States, making a lecture tour that included a course at Harvard. The $40,000 that he received as the Nobel prize he devoted to the development of his school at Belur, India, which he had founded to broaden the minds of his countrymen. During the war he was accused of pro-Germanism, and his name appeared on the lists of those intriguing against British rule in India. He was born fifty-seven years ago, coming from one of India's most distinguished families, a race that had for hundreds of years produced notable politicians, musicians, writers and social reformers. He received his education at Oxford. Then he took charge of his father's extensive estate in India, where he proved himself a capable executive, at the same time doing valuable work in studying the social and economic problems that confronted his people. He was writing at the same time, publishing a long series of poems, plays, short stories and novels. On his visits to England he was acclaimed for the tenacity with which he sang his own songs and for the power with which he acted in his own plays. He had written that his goal was "to explain the fullness of life in its beauty as its perfection." He was recognized in India as the leader of the modern movement, and had sought to bring his countrymen into greater sympathy with the western world, at the same time explaining the eastern civilization to the west. His best known book here is "Gitanjali," which reminded many Americans of Walt Whitman, as his appearance with his long white beard had recalled the American poet. In his prayer of life he wrote: "Give me the strength never to drown the poor or bend my knee before ineffectual might." In his reported resignation of knighthood he says that the disproportionate severity of punishments inflicted upon Indians by the British in Punjab is without parallel in the history of civilized government, and that he is a conspicuous exception. He adds: "Considering that such treatment has been meted out to a population disarmed and resourceless by a power which has the most terribly efficient organization for destruction of human lives, we must strongly assert that it can claim no moral expediency, far less moral justification." "Knowing that one appeals have been in vain and that the person of a man of honor, which could so easily afford to be magnanimous as to forgive its physical strength and moral tradition, the very least I can do for my country is to take all consequences upon myself in giving voice to the protest of millions of my countrymen, surprised into a dumb attitude of terror."

A buffet lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Wednesday evening serious wounds were inflicted on the body of Albert Hale, 13-year-old New Boston youth, who this was the second victim of the dog which a month ago bit Helen Esther Smalley, daughter of Charles Smalley, New Boston.

The dog which belonged to Frank Jensen, Hurlstoneville, was said to be vicious and was killed this morning by Health Officer C. O. Davis. Dr. W. G. Cheney was called to attend to the boy. Health Officer Davis said the dog showed no signs of being mad, and after it was killed the dog was buried, as it was not thought necessary to send the head to Columbia for inspection.

The little Smalley girl who was bit a month ago, still continues in good health. Albert Hale, who is the son of Nelson Hale, is being watched carefully for any developments which might result from the bite.

SIR RABINDRANATH TAGORE

Sir Rabindranath Tagore is reported to have resigned his title, explaining in a letter to the viceroy of India, that he could not in honor continue to hold title under the British government because of the " enormity of the measures taken in India. He obtained world fame when awarded the Nobel prize in 1913, for idealistic literature. In the same year he visited the United States, making a lecture tour that included a course at Harvard. The $40,000 that he received as the Nobel prize he devoted to the development of his school at Belur, India, which he had founded to broaden the minds of his countrymen. During the war he was accused of pro-Germanism, and his name appeared on the lists of those intriguing against British rule in India. He was born fifty-seven years ago, coming from one of India's most distinguished families, a race that had for hundreds of years produced notable politicians, musicians, writers and social reformers. He received his education at Oxford. Then he took charge of his father's extensive estate in India, where he proved himself a capable executive, at the same time doing valuable work in studying the social and economic problems that confronted his people. He was writing at the same time, publishing a long series of poems, plays, short stories and novels. On his visits to England he was acclaimed for the tenacity with which he sang his own songs and for the power with which he acted in his own plays. He had written that his goal was "to explain the fullness of life in its beauty as its perfection." He was recognized in India as the leader of the modern movement, and had sought to bring his countrymen into greater sympathy with the western world, at the same time explaining the eastern civilization to the west. His best known book here is "Gitanjali," which reminded many Americans of Walt Whitman, as his appearance with his long white beard had recalled the American poet. In his prayer of life he wrote: "Give me the strength never to drown the poor or bend my knee before ineffectual might." In his reported resignation of knighthood he says that the disproportionate severity of punishments inflicted upon Indians by the British in Punjab is without parallel in the history of civilized government, and that he is a conspicuous exception. He adds: "Considering that such treatment has been meted out to a population disarmed and resourceless by a power which has the most terribly efficient organization for destruction of human lives, we must strongly assert that it can claim no moral expediency, far less moral justification." "Knowing that one appeals have been in vain and that the person of a man of honor, which could so easily afford to be magnanimous as to forgive its physical strength and moral tradition, the very least I can do for my country is to take all consequences upon myself in giving voice to the protest of millions of my countrymen, surprised into a dumb attitude of terror."

GOOD COMES OF EVIL

WAR is horrible. Its evil, however, is not altogether uncompensated in the good that comes of it. Its slaughter and its desolation are qualified by arousing of man's noblest passion and the quickening of his soul now and then.

In a town, that holds many dear associations to us, but from which circumstances have taken us afar and for many years, we left behind a toddling child of rather remote kinship. He was a general favorite because he was bright and sweet and withal a merry lad. As he advanced towards manhood he grew in favor because of the apparent uprightness of his character and the undoubted correctness of his deportment, coupled with an air that people said was so like his father passed on, a noble and generous gentleman. For a time after he had reached manhood's estate he justified the faith and the pride the community had in him. He was industrious and capable and a useful, successful and even brilliant career seemed set open before him. Then something happened, or rather began to happen, no one ever knew what, or just exactly why, but he began to drift backwards. He did not take to drink, he fell into no evil habits that were observable and if he had serious vices they were never so much as hinted at—he just drifted backwards, ever backwards and downwards. His near relatives all died and his friends fell away from him, while he continued to drift backwards until he, the pride and promise of the community, became the outcast, a worthless, trifling vagabond.

Then came the war. He heard a call and something within him stirred. That the draft age, true, but he could enlist. So between two days he took the railroad track that wound its sinuous and rough way to the big city almost a hundred and fifty miles distant. Weary, hungry and ragged he several days afterwards appeared at a recruiting station, but big, blazing posters said the country wanted men, not human derelicts and quite so the officers noted. The call, however, was not to be denied and after many rebuffs he, who can say with how much pride and hope, wrote his name down for service. Never a line he wrote his remote kin, or his old friends, of what he had done, but somehow the news got out, whereupon a most wonderful thing was shown. Those related to him by blood were not ashamed of him, why they were proud of him. Men came to shake his hand and tell him they hoped he would make such a soldier as the son of his father should; women came with gifts, mostly made with their own hands, and they kissed him and told him they would pray God to keep him safe.

So one day the whole city turned out to see "our boys" as they marched to the big depot on their way across, and none held his head more erect or looked straighter ahead than this trifter and hopeless one of a few months ago, for weren't his love proud of him and wasn't he make good and justify their love and their faith, besides doing a man's part in fighting for his country. In France he did make good. So good, that although his regiment, which from start to finish ranked with the first and the few as the best fighters, was returned months ago, he of all that gallant division, is quite alone in France, because his superior officers say he is so good a man they can't spare him.

WHAT THE WAVES ARE SAYING

OUR old friend John "Burkey" Jones, who is disporting with the dolphins along the waters of the New Jersey coast, jubilantly sends us an article from the New York Globe, in which the prediction is made that prices are coming down and the high cost of living will fade as the memory of a troubled dream.

The basis of the prediction is that the government has in storage 85,973,000 pounds of beef, 70,157,000 pounds of pork, 7,893,000 pounds of butter and 350,000,000 dozens of eggs, which will soon be thrown on the open market and then things will come a tumbling.

Nonsense! It is easy to accept these bright promises when one is sojourning with his folks and they pay the bill, but we who have to feed ourselves directly from the exorbitant stores of the truckman view them dubiously, with a cold suspicious and frightful frowning. Eighty-five million pounds of beef sounds loud, so does seventy million pounds of pork and likewise three hundred and sixty million dozen eggs, but there are 100,000,000 lean and hungry stomachs in these United States and what would all that amount to in filling them, to say nothing of keeping them filled at a reasonable charge! Less than a pound around and just about three dozen eggs. It wouldn't give us three square meals a day and if we ate with that "coming appetite," that Burkey parades at a Masonic banquet, or an Elk buffet luncheon, all but crumbs and shells would disappear over night.

Nothing in it, Burkey, nothing in it, we say, and as you will find when you return with the cooling breezes of September and go out to fill your own larder.

Another old ramshackle rookery on Chillicothe street has just been torn down and on its site will go up a building more suitable. No use talking, you can't stop the onward and upward march of the Peerless. A hundred years from now we expect to see "a modern structure" on the vacant Jones lot.

Bela Kuhn is overthrown, which reminds us Bela is said to be a tiger and a tiger is an overgrown cat. He has been overthrown a half dozen times but he always come back and that makes it painful to reflect that the job has to be done over three times yet.

Seloto farmers bought three times as much lime for their fields this year as they bought last. That is moving along some and may the pace grow still faster.

THE WISHING PLANE

Just he soon saw that he was going to last many months. The number of soldiers grew rapidly. Germany sent larger forces and France had to leave more men to sent against the enemy.

The father's story of the battles in which he fought and the brave deeds of the man around him just like the others the children had heard on their travels. Then finally he had been captured. He was taken to a German prison camp. There followed weeks of just waiting and wondering when he could get a chance to escape. Finally his chance came, and in company with other French soldiers who had been taken with him, he made his way out of the camp during a violent storm one night. For days they were forced to hide during the day and travel at night. The only food they had was vegetables taken from the fields. Twice they were almost captured by German bands out looking for escaped prisoners. On one occasion they had to swim a river and slip past a line of German sentries to escape capture.

At last they reached the French lines, found out where their regiment were fighting and joined them. More days of fighting followed—until he was wounded near Rheims and taken to the hospital there. You remember the doctor there told how the hospital became crowded and as soon as Jeanne's father could be moved he was taken to the hospital at Paris. His left arm had been shattered by bullets and had been cut off. Otherwise he was healthy and felt sure that when they returned home he could provide for Jeanne and her mother.

Then she told of her search for Jeanne's father and how she finally had found him in the hospital. Jeanne dear recalled that a woman in Rheims had noticed the resemblance of Jeanne to a woman who had stopped at her home, and when Ladyrue asked Jeanne's mother if she had visited Rheims she said yes.

"At that time I had decided that Jeanne was dead. That is why the woman at Rheims probably thought I could not be Jeanne's mother," she said. "How we ever found each other again is one of the wonderful stories of the war."

contortions. I thought nothing of seeing them walking up stairs on their hands or turning a flip off the front stoop.

There are all sorts of landladies too on West Fifty Seventh street. I remember of seeing one who wore a silk robe, a diamond stomacher and pearl earrings. And there was another a little further east who had a patch over her eye and drank Jamaica rum before breakfast. Her chief drapery was an apron.

In some of the better class boarding houses now a single room with meals ranges from $30 to $75 a week. It is impossible to get anything cheaper than that. There is one woman who runs a chain of boarding houses. They are scattered over the town. She lives in London. Has a fine place in Kensington and all that.

And whither it really. She once used the King. She was a slaver girl in one of a number of years ago. A handsome boomer with a lot of money and an alarming cough fell in love with her because she was so kind. The cough took him off. The girl got the money, bought the boarding house and finally a chain of them.

Will Rogers complains that the near beer is something like a man kissing a woman and not making a lick. The number of new beers that have suddenly appeared in the New York market is astounding. The names are suggestive of a kick. But they haven't got it.

"Honest Dan" Coffey, who was put in the tobacco in February with his reduction from Inspector, has been sent to the "poor." He goes out to a lonely Westchester station. For years he was the head of the vigilant Broadway vice squad. He cleaned up the gambling, the pyramids and the pool tables, the vice interests of the city. He said that the vice interests of the city had a monthly to let them run full away. Why he was deposed is another story. But those who know say it is a leading disgrace to New York and its police department.

Speaking of the police, a raid was made on one of the famous dance parties. Forty young men were arrested. Twelve were hit over the heads with clubs and brought to the station house bleeding. Most of them were young fellows who went to the place because it was cheap. Not one resisted arrest. It is said. But the property had been discovered some clothing and so his patrons got the benefit of the police fury. There are some good fellows in New York—but they are as the Westerner said "rare as birds."

Mr. Root is fond of telling this story about himself. One day he said to his office boy, "Who has taken my waste paper basket?"

"Mr. Johnson, sir, the caretaker," was the reply.

Some time later Mr. Root asked, "James, who opened that window?"

"Mr. Smith, sir, the window cleaner."

"Now, look here," said Mr. Root, "we call men by their first names here. We don't 'mistake' them in this office. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir."

Ten minutes afterward the door opened and the shrill voice of James was heard saying, "There's a man who wants to see you, Elmer!"

"We All Agree There."

"Even war must have some benefits."

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton. "Henrietta and I were discussing the matter yesterday. For the first time in years we were enthusiastically agreed in our opinions."

SIR RABINDRANATH TAGORE

Sir Rabindranath Tagore is reported to have resigned his title of knight of the British Empire in honor of the British government because of the " enormity of the measures taken in India."

He obtained world fame when awarded the Nobel prize in 1913, for his literary work.

In the same year he visited the United States, making a lecture tour that included a course at Harvard.

The $10,000 that he received as the Nobel prize he devoted to the relief of his school at Bolpur, India, which he had founded to broaden the minds of his countrymen.

During the war he was accused of pro-Germanism, and his name appeared on the lists of these traitors against British rule in India.

He was born fifty-seven years ago, coming from one of India's most distinguished families, a race that had for hundreds of years produced notable painters, musicians, writers and social reformers. He received his education at Oxford. Then he took charge of his father's extensive estate in India, where he proved himself a capable executive, at the same time doing valuable work in studying the social and economic problems that confronted his people.

He was writing at the same time, publishing a long series of poems, plays, short stories and novels. On his visits to England he was acclaimed for the beauty with which he sang his own songs and for the power with which he acted in his own plays.

He had written that his goal was "to explain the fullness of life in its beauty as its perfection." "Considering that such treatment has been meted out to a population of uneducated and resourceless by a power which has the most terribly efficient organization for destruction of human lives, we must strongly assert that it can claim no moral expediency, far less moral justification."

"Knowing that our appeals have been in vain and that the passage of vengeance is blinding the noble vision of government, which could so easily afford to be magnanimous as befitts his physical strength and moral tradition, the very least I can do for my country is to take all consequences upon myself in giving voice to the protest of millions of my countrymen, surprised into a dumb anguish by education at Oxford.
